Gun Fight Up Valley Ends Vino Party

Two elderly paisanos, muy buenos amigos, had a vino party up Carmel Valley Monday night. In the heat engendered by the wine, a small argument developed. Now one is in the county hospital with a badly infected bullet wound in his shoulder, the other is out on parole pending developments of the wound.

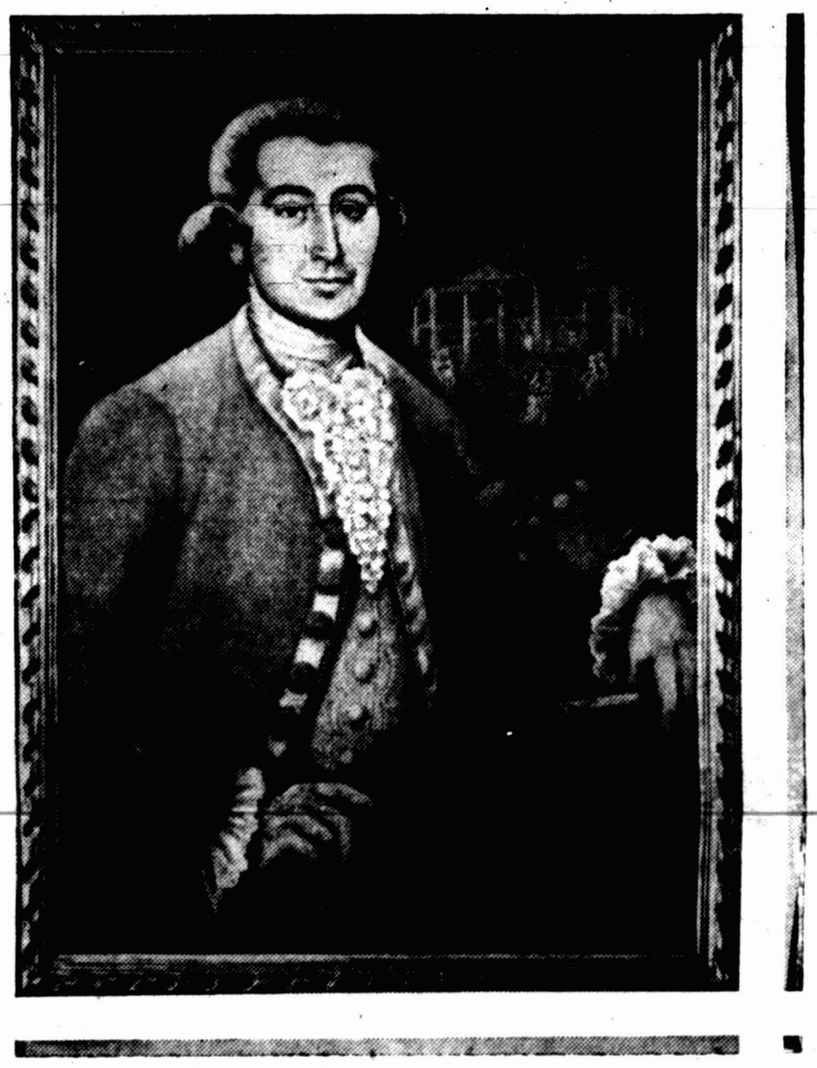

Meanwhile Deputy Sheriff Gene Trenner and Highway Patrolman Leonard Williams are relieved that the matter has reached a temporary status quo after two days of excursions and alarms, ambulance calls and a disappearing corpse.

At six thirty Tuesday morning Patrolman Williams, who lives up the Valley, was roused by Jose Peralta, 74 years old and very drunk, making the tearful announcement that he had just slain his companero, Jesus Guiterrez, whose body was lying at that moment in a field due to the fact that he, Jose, had fired four shots into it.

Williams notified Trenner in Monterey, requested an ambulance, and then went out to view the remains of Jesus Guiterrez. On arriving at the scene he was somewhat disturbed to find that there was no corpse. Williams made the rounds of the places Guiterrez frequents to find him working in the fields at his accustomed job. Por supuesto, no, he hadn't been shot. To be sure, that one, Jose Peralta had fired four shots at him, but how could one so drunk hit anything? As for him, Jesus Guiterrez, except for a little stiffness in the shoulder he was well enough, and no, he would not swear out a complaint for the arrest of his companero. The ambulance arrived and returned to Monterey without a fare.

Wednesday the ambulance was summoned again by a now thoroughly alarmed Leonard Williams. The "stiffness" in Jesus Guiterrez's shoulder was one of the four bullets that had "missed" Guiterrez on the night of the vino celebration, and in the twenty-four hours that had intervened the wound had become seriously

Portrait of Don Manuel Gayoso deLemos, painted on commission for the Louisiana State Museum by his descendant, Pedro deLemos, director of the Stanford Museum and Art Gallery, who for a number of years was a member of the Carmel Art Association and its first president.

Missing Portrait in Governor's Room. Painted by Descendant after 144 Years

The Louisiana State Museum, formerly the Spanish Capitol in New Orleans, has recently unveiled, in its Spanish Governor's Room, an oil painting of the last Spanish Governor of Louisiana. This governor represented the King of Spain during the Louisiana Purchase and supervised the surveys determining the boundary lines. His portrait, about three by four feet in size, was painted by his descendant, Pedro deLemos, Director of the Stanford Museum and Art Gallery, and first president of the Carmel Art association, who received the commission from the Louisiana Museum.

A letter received by Director deLemos from the Board of Directors of the Louisiana Museum states, "The painting, together with the other six portraits of the Spaniards who ruled Louisiana many years ago, is placed in the Sala Capitular, the room in which the Louisiana Purchase was signed. Those who have seen this portrait and those who especially appreciate such things, one and all agreed that you have deftly caught the spirit of the period and the personage. The opinion was unanimous, too, that this portrait is a very valuable acquisition to the museum."

This last Louisiana Spanish governor died in 1799. As there was no Spanish successor, according to Spanish custom, to arrange for the predecessor's portrait, a photographic enlargement from a

By HELEN HEAVY, VICE CHAIRMAN, RED CROSS

A tremendous amount of publicity was given the American Red Cross during the month of March concerning its activities in connection with the war effort on the fighting fronts. The services rendered to the armed forces are of the utmost importance to the comfort and morale of the men in the field, and are instrumental in maintaining that same comfort and morale when our men are off duty, wherever they may be. Every citizen with a relative in the service appreciates those things that are being done.

Do not forget that at the same time the Red Cross is carrying on behind the battlefront the greatest civilian welfare program in its entire history. One of the first considerations of any Red Cross chapter is a disaster and training program to meet the needs of Civilian Defense plans for emergency service. Red Cross was charged with full responsibilities for disaster relief when it was chartered by the United States government in 1881. It has never failed. Today, the same responsibilities exist, and your local chapter is fully prepared to carry on this tradition.

Recognizing the importance of this part of the Red Cross program, the local chapter has established an active disaster preparedness and relief committee. This committee is headed by Colonel George Stuart. Colonel Stu-

$200 Raise For 21 Teachers In Carmel Schools

At a meeting Monday night the school board confirmed the $200 a year raise in salaries for 21 Carmel teachers that had been decided on at the Tuesday night board meeting last week.

The raise, which calls for an additional expenditure of $42,000 a year for salaries will be covered by the increase in state allotment that passed the legislature this week and is awaiting approval of Governor Earl Warren. The allotment provides for an increase in state aid from $60 to $70 per pupil.

Twenty-one teachers, all the present faculty at Sunset and the high school, with the exception of those new teachers who will start work with the opening of the fall term, are affected, their increase ranging from nine to twelve percent.

Action of the board was influenced by the increase in cost of living, by the fact that several veteran Carmel teachers were lost to Carmel schools this year through offers to take higher paying jobs elsewhere, and by the passage of the bill to increase state aid, Superintendent J. W. Getsinger said.

Rent Freeze Approaches

The rent freeze that Corum Jackson has been trying for months to stave off through voluntary cooperation of property owners and real estate agents is now so imminent that a house to house canvass is in process by government investigators.

It will be a sad thing if the greed and short-sightedness of a few offenders should bring down on all the nuisance of government control, for it is a nuisance as much to the government as to the individual. Voluntary cooperation not only is the more economical method, but is also the more conducive to self-respect and morale. Whenever the government has to step in and slap down the individual something of the ideal of democracy is lost.

The especially annoying element of the situation here is that those who have taken advantage of the housing shortage to up their rents have not a shadow of excuse. Formerly, relatively high rents were justifiable on the contention that many property owners maintained vacant houses in the winter and had to get theirs from the summer visitors during the vacation period. That condition no longer exists. The army and navy officer personnel are here the year around.

It is useless to appeal to the rent gougers in terms of patriotism, but they certainly should see that their policy will work for their own disadvantage. Government control of housing, as with

On the feature page of this issue is a script of a talk by Dr. E. O. Sisson given recently at a meeting of the P. T. A. Dr. Sisson, a retired college professor who has generously undertaken to serve as adult school principal until the end of the current school term, has made a life study of educational methods, not only in this country but in Europe, particularly in Germany and Switzerland. For his observations on the effect of educational policies in those countries he is well qualified to form a sound opinion on the direction American educational methods should take for the best interest of the children and the nation as a whole.

Noel Sullivan, Marjorie Wurzmann Concert Saturday

The program to be presented on Saturday afternoon at 3:30 in the Carmel Playhouse by Marjorie Legge Wurzmann, pianist, and Noel Sullivan, bass, with Gerita Hanna as his accompanist, promises to be an unusually diversified and interesting one.

Neither Noel Sullivan nor Mrs. Wurzmann needs an introduction to the Carmel audience, for their talents have always given delight in their rare appearances. This present concert is an expression of public-spirited generosity on their part, since all its proceeds are to be given to Bundles-United (Britain and America).

Tickets will be on sale at the Playhouse from 2:30 p.m. on.

Martin Gambee's 'Dark Mountain' Wins Prize

"The Dark Mountain," water color by Martin Gambee which hung for a time in the Carmel Art association gallery, has just won the coveted Shaw Prize for the best painting exhibited in the annual water color show of the Salmagundi Club in New York.

On the heels of that signal honor, "The Dark Mountain" was given Honorable Mention at the exhibit of the New Haven Paint and Clay club.

Mr. Gambee, whose water color of trees and fog has excited enthusiastic comment in the present Artists for Victory show, is at present in San Diego, doing production illustrations for Consolidated Aircraft Corporation, making drawings for the service manuals issued to pilots. Mrs. Gambee and the two Gambee children Frank and Anne, Carmel high school students, spent the Easter holidays in San Diego.

Crowds Enjoy Artists for Victory Show; Buy $632 in Bonds and Stamps, Find Exhibit Varied and Exciting

More than 300 art and war bond minded people invaded the Carmel Art association gallery between the hours of five and seven on Saturday, May 1, inspecting the varied exhibit, admiring the floral decorations, imbibing the white wine and brandy punch and lending their money to Uncle Sam—$632 of it.

It was a noteworthy occasion from many angles. The gallery radiated an atmosphere of cooperative enthusiasm that augurs well for Carmel's part in the current bond-buying campaign. It was largely a civilian audience, too, interspersed only here and there with army and navy uniforms. The exhibit itself was exciting and unique. This is the first time a show has been hung comprising so conglomerate a variety of media — oils, tempora, water colors and mosaic, side by side.

Among the Carmel artists who literally went all out for victory, not satisfying themselves merely by entering their canvesses, but contributing generously of their time and labor and money to make the opening reception a success, especial mention should be made of the committee who did such a skilful job of hanging the pictures: Paul Mays, William Ritschel and Myron Oliver, assisted by Mrs. Rama Stearns and Armin Hansen.

This same committee, augmented by Mrs. Francis McComas and J. Varda, will serve during the coming weeks as judges in the awarding of prizes to the exhibiting artists. Each visitor to the gallery will be assessed the price of a war stamp and will be permitted to cast a vote for his favorite picture. All prizes, as well as all materials used by the refreshment and decoration committees were voluntary donations made by those who are eager to see the bond sale total of Saturday mount steadily over the top during the month of May.

Forty-three artists are represented in the present Victory exhibit, which runs the full gamut of mood, subject and technique from William Ritschel's "Coral Reefs" to Janka Varda's spicy mosaic and Robert Anderson's "Scene from Contemporary Life." Ferdinand Bergdorf's "Golden Rain, Arizona" dominates the far wall, full of dash and verve, and nearby is Micaela Martinez' "Archangel Michael." There is masterly drawing and symbolism, too, in the Paul Mays' "Alas, the Dance Is Over," and eery imagination in the Maxine Albro "Rescue."

Patricia Cunningham, director of the Carmel Art Institute, and mainspring behind the present plan for aiding the war effort, is represented by a portrait of Mrs. Martin Flavin, and Martin Baer by his delightful "Pepita." Here, too, are portraits by Lady Claude Kinnoull and Florence Lockwood, and floral still life from the brush of Henrietta Shore and Marjorie Doolittle. Royden Martin has contributed a new desert water color, and in this same medium is the impressive view of trees and fog by Martin Gambee. There is nothing static about the show prepared for the Carmel public this May. Some of it will excite awe, some will provoke controversy; nobody was bored on Saturday.

Busy at the war bond booth all during the two hours were Mrs. Robert Doolittle and Mrs. Loa Lloyd.

At the table so originally and effectively decorated by Mrs. Chloe Wilson and Mrs. George Seideneck, Miss Micaela Martinez, Miss Katherine Goodfellow and Mrs. Virginia Mikulak dispensed punch. Other hostesses were Mrs. Elizabeth Cass, curator of the gallery, Mrs. Stuart Haldorn, Mrs. Havens Monteagle, Miss Marjorie Warren, Mrs. Edna Herlofson, Mrs. Margaret Stark, Mrs. Katherine Dugan and Mrs. Fritz Wurzmann.

The full list of exhibiting artists includes the names of Babette Fickert, Alice Comins, Edna Heath, Frank Myers, Mrs. A. Acton Hall, Jules Flobert, Wilma Aldrich, Thomas McGlynn, Harry Mist, William Watts, Margaret Levick, Mrs. E. O. Sisson, Celia Seymour, M. de Neale Morgan, Royall Stowall, Howard Higley, Burton Boundy, Bessie Boyd Fraser, Laura Maxwell, Mrs. John Clay, William Silva, Florence True, Maynard Curtis, Marjorie Pegram, Catherine Seideneck, Jaffrey Harris, Howard Smith, Armin Hansen and Mary Morrison.

Hefling Turns Over Nearly $6,000 for Month's Tax Take

A total of $5,965.30 was garnered for the city treasury last month by Tax Collector Thomas Hefling, $5,725.48 for 1943 taxes, the remainder from dog licenses, business licenses and redemptions on delinquent taxes.

Two new business licenses for $60 were taken out by George B. Stevens, a painter, and Tice Electrical shop, both Monterey concerns that have Carmel contracts. $75.22 was paid on delinquent 1942 taxes, $40.60 for 1940, 1941 redemptions. Dog license take totaled $64.00 bringing the total for the year from this source of revenue to $364.25.

In case you are wondering what to give Mother this Sunday, the white fabric gloves, attractive knitting bags, or lovely handkerchiefs at the JEAN RITCHIE YARN SHOP are certainly the very things we'd suggest. These gifts are useful and pretty too, and war-time calls for double purpose items.

Judge Geo. Ross Finds Last 100 Hardest to Take

After fining and lecturing 137 traffic violators this month, City Judge George P. Ross undertook a one-man education program this week, and using the Pine Cone Cymbal as a medium for disseminating knowledge, informed the editor of thirteen ways motorists can stay out from under the shadow of his frown.

Prefacing his remarks with, "The law enforcement officers of Carmel are not seeking fines, but want cooperation from automobilists," he pointed out that one of the prize methods of non-cooperation with Carmel police officers is to leave the car double parked to nip into the grocery store to pick up a loaf of bread and a quart of milk while traffic piles up behind your abandoned vehicle like motorized equipment in a Nazi retreat in the African theater of war. But if some competent person with a driver's license is left behind the steering wheel so he can ease the car along in case of necessity while you gather up the groceries, that's all right with the judge.

The red borders you find here and there at interesting intervals along the curbs are not there for means of beautifying the town, he says. They have been placed there in the interest of the health and safety of the community and you are not to park there. You are not to park where there are "No Parking" signs either. Those signs mean what they say, and the judge doesn't like to have to say it all over again when you appear before him with your citation.

Don't park or stop on corners or intersections in such a way as to block the cross walks, he warns. People on foot like to be able to get from here to there without climbing over your fenders and radiator, besides, who knows, you may have your B card taken away from you some day and have to walk yourself. Also, you aren't supposed to park in driveways or on sidewalks. What if in 80 percent of the cases sidewalks aren't distinguishable from streets in Carmel! You can use your imagination, can't you?

The next is easy: Don't park on the wrong side of the street. Almost anybody can distinguish which is the wrong side of the street. Now comes the one which, if you disregard it will get you the Judge's choicest brand of invective. He has sensitive ears and when he says, "Don't sound horn except for safety purposes," he means it to such an extent that if he hears you, he'll not wait for the police to make the arrest; he'll go out and escort you into his chambers in person.

Frowned upon also are: parking across from the postoffice, backing around corners at intersections, stopping in cross walks to let someone out of the car, and double-parking to hold conversation with someone on the street, even though it is Mayor P. A. McCreery with one of his prize stories.

To make things absolutely clear, the judge gave the legal interpretation of "parking." "A car is parked when it is stopped in any street or alley for any purpose other than in obedience to traffic signs or signals, or the direction of a police officer." He wound up by saying that failure to heed any of the above "don'ts" is a violation whether your car is attended or unattended.

Chief Fraties Reports Before Co. Grand Jury

Chief of Police Roy Fraties was able to give a good account of the law enforcement department of the City of Carmel in his report before the Grand Jury Wednesday.

Questioned by District Attorney Anthony Brazil as to the existence of houses of prostitution or gambling places in Carmel, Fraties gave an unqualified "No."

Increase in juvenile delinquency here was not out of line with the influx of newcomers, Fraties said.

The district attorney and the Grand Jury evinced considerable interest in Fraties' report on the Carmel police radio. The first town on the peninsula to install a police radio system, Carmel has been instrumental in the adoption of similar systems in the other Peninsula towns. With its aid, Carmel police department can operate with a much reduced force.

Speaking for the judicial department, Fraties pointed out that the judge has a set salary and does not derive his compensation through fines. He also testified to the impartiality of Judge Ross in dealing with all offenders alike.

Following the resignation under fire of the Salinas Chief of Police, recently asked to explain the continued existence of houses of prostitution and gambling places in Salinas, the grand jury has now turned to the routine business of listening to reports of the department heads of the various Monterey county towns.

government control of anything else, involves endless red tape, filling out of forms and loss of individual ability to act except through formal hearing before officials, a time consuming and expensive process.

An alternative penalty to the rent freeze, which is not as inconceivable as we should like to imagine, is for the army and navy authorities to provide housing for the officer personnel on the military reservations. Not a happy prospect for the landlords of Carmel.

Good for the Council!

The Carmel City Council batted 1000 at its Wednesday night meeting. The members informally gave Superintendent J. W. Getsinger the go-ahead sign for the recreation program this summer, endorsing it enthusiastically, pointing out that the need for it this year is even greater than last because of the unrest resulting from war conditions, calling it an insurance against juvenile delinquency.

The councilmen boosted the salary of Carmel's hard-working city judge from $75 to $100 a month, little enough when one considers the wear and tear on good nature of handling 137 traffic cases in a month, without taking into consideration the expenditure of time.

They told the city clerk he could appoint a much needed deputy, since he has telescoped his former job of budget control manager and financial adviser with that of city clerk. Now the combined salaries of clerk and deputy will not equal by $25 a month the former salaries of financial adviser and city clerk.

Finally, they expressed their indignation at the action of the state legislature in passing the sign-board bill which will leave the scenic San Simeon highway wide open for defacement by advertising signs, and decided to wire Governor Earl Warren urging his veto, and to ask the other Peninsula city councils to do likewise.

Individuals and organizations in Carmel would do well to follow their example.

Our own rather high opinion of the state legislature, acquired through a study of its courageous stands in various crises in the past, has taken a slump since its idiotic action on the sign board matter but we find some consolation in noting that our governing body here is made up of men of good will and common sense and that as a result the waters of our own little puddle are serene—for the present, at any rate.

Good for the School Board!

The school board in raising the teachers' salaries this week accepted the only solution to a problem that has been nagging it for the past six months. Men teachers here and throughout the state have been drawn into the armed forces and defense work. Their places have to be taken by women. Larger and richer school districts, having to fill the gaps, and able to offer high wages, have been luring the better teachers away from the smaller schools. Carmel school district has lost one of its best through this condition and shortly others would go. And who could blame them?

There is no question that a large part of our tax money must go for the war effort. But the war will pass in a few years. Whereas, neglect of children leaves its mark through a generation. Even the present state legislature, with all its stupidity, is able to see so patent a fact, and has increased the state aid from $60 to $70 per pupil. This increase will take care of the teachers' salary raise here.

—Wilma B. Cook.

Carmel Good but Careless, Police Report Indicates

Carmel has been a fairly well-behaved town during the month of April, its law infringements arising out of human frailties rather than viciousness, with a preponderance of offenses in the category of traffic violations, according to the monthly report submitted to the City Council Wednesday night by Chief of Police Roy Fraties.

Of the 137 who received little white slips from the police and had to explain them to Judge Ross, 13 had no certificate of registration, 12 had parked in cross walks, 16 had parked on the wrong side of the street, 20 had earned theirs for speeding, 27 drove with bright headlights in a dimmed out area, 15 double parked, three draped themselves on running boards or crowded too deep in the front seat, 16 had no operators' licenses, seven were guilty of faulty parking and eight ignored the stop signs.

Twelve arrests were made for other than traffic offenses: three drunks, one for unattended lights, one for disturbing the peace, one for shop lifting, two for drunk driving. The tally was completed with four juvenile arrests.

In addition to arrests made and traffic citations handed out, the police handled 133 complaints and 907 reports.

small ivory miniature has been used for many years in place of a painted portrait.

Pedro deLemos describes the newly painted portrait as follows: "The commission appealed to me, as it required research among old documents to supply costume data of the Spanish period. It also required visiting a number of historic localities in the South for information pertaining to the governor's history. The style of painting, so as to harmonize with the six other Spanish portraits, painted between 1762 and 1800, had to be painted in the 'bitumen-foundation' style and method. However, time has proven that bitumen darkens pictures rapidly and disintegrates certain colors. I substituted other pigments for the bitumen so as to secure more permanent color values."

In the research, an autobiography was located written by Governor Gayoso's grandson. This and a locket containing a lock of Gayoso's blond hair, depicts him as a blue-eyed blond, a coloring typical of about a quarter of the northern Spanish people.

At one time, Gayoso deLemos was governor of the vast Spanish "Territory of Mississippi," which comprised an area covering nine of our present states and parts of others. During these years he founded the city of Natchez and established a fort on the Mississippi which later became the site of Memphis, Tennessee.

The building appearing in the background of the governor's portrait is what was known as the "Governor's Palace." It was famous for its hospitality to the noted French, English, American and Spanish travelers who had to stop at Natchez for Spanish customs when traveling on the Mississippi. The map shown in the governor's hand is a plan of Natchez, with a restricted section for fine homes, one of the first "zoned" residence plans in America.

For Mother
a gift of comfort
there's no other Chair like it

Mother will praise it because the front of the seat does not raise her feet off of the floor to an undignified position.

It is the only chair made with a tilting seat and back, both operating as one, and adjustable to a lounging or sitting position, the front of the seat always keeping its same height from the floor.

There's no better gift for mother in these busy, work-heavy days than the Streit "slumber" chair. The thick cushions support the small of her back. And the tilt of the seat gives equal weight distribution for perfect relaxation. A choice of styling for modern or period rooms.

DO WE EDUCATE OUR CHILDREN?

By Dr. Edward O. Sisson

DO WE LOVE OUR SCHOOLS? Oh yes, but how much? Take the lowest measure first—money. Ah, yes, you say, plenty of proof there; we spend over 2 and a half billion dollars a year on our schools. Yes, we're coming up. But look a little closer: the sum sounds magnificent, or did until we began war expenditures: it might seem unfair to compare school costs with war costs,—let that pass for the moment,—but take some other regular outlays—for example two favorite luxuries, tobacco and liquor. For these two rather dubious items we spend twice as much as for all the public schools. Must we admit then that we love tobacco and liquor twice as well as we love our schools? You give your own answer.

I should add that fifteen or twenty years ago, when we were bragging lustily how we loved our schools, we spent five times as much for tobacco and liquor as for our schools. We're making progress anyway. But we still should soft-pedal our protestations of affection.

When we come to active interest the case is still worse, although not so easy to reduce to figures. With our lips we pay homage to education as supremely important. But we deny to the profession of education anything but a poor fourth place among the great professions, putting engineering, medicine, law, far above it in both cash remuneration and social prestige. We have talked so much nonsense on this point we have actually fooled ourselves. Some years ago I had been making statements like these to a large audience in a California city, and after the meeting a prosperous-looking lawyer took me to task, declaring with some warmth that the teaching profession stood high in the estimation of the public. "Would you like to have your son become a teacher?" I asked him rather bluntly. The man positively turned pale.

WHAT DO YOU THINK THE SCHOOLS SHOULD TEACH? The first answer to our question is quite simple: the schools and the teachers in the schools should teach the children. Smile at this if you will, but in the past most teachers, and even now many teachers, teach subjects and forget the children. I am careful to say children rather than "pupils" or even 'students," because above all things the teacher needs to hold fast in his mind that he is dealing with children, with young men and women, and that these young people are human beings in their own right, from kindergarten to graduate school, with their own lives to live, their own hopes, ambitions, likes and dislikes, all just as legitimate and as important as the hopes and ambitions, likes and dislikes of grown folks. Yes, and with their own duties and obligations, their need for discipline and development, their natural impulse and function of growing up, of leaving infantilism and immaturity behind and achieving mature personality and competency.

Next, far too much stress has been put on teaching and far too little upon learning, for teaching is only a means whereas the end and aim of the job is learning. Dorothy Thompson, in one of her not infrequent flashes of insight, declares that "Pedagogy, the art and science of teaching, has taken the place of learning." Her only mistake is in the dating—teaching has almost always crowded learning out all down through history; only recently has it occurred to anybody that learning is the vital thing and teaching only instrumental. But the new vision is in the air now, so that even a columnist catches it on the rebound. Nearly fifty years ago John Dewey shocked the pedagogical world by declaring that 'the teacher has been too much in the center of the stage." So let us reword the title and say: What do you think children and young people should learn in school?

But even learning does not penetrate to the heart of education: the final question is not what are the children learning, but what are they becoming? What kind of men and women are they growing into? What kind of persons, members of families, and of their communities, citizens of the Republic, and, we must add in these days of world crisis, what sort of members of the great human race to which we all belong, and in whose fate we are all involved? These are the elements of education as contrasted with mere school learnings. So we may again reword our title and make it express our problem more truly and much more forcibly: What sort of men and women do we think our children should become? This gets down to bedrock, and lifts our subject from triviality—spelling, grammar, the rule of three, the conjugation of amo—to majesty and splendor. But asking any lesser question is dodging the issue and evading our obligation to the children and to nation and humanity.

Now when we phrase the question in this way and ask what kind of persons these children are to grow into, we see at once one point that is constantly forgotten—the bulk of anybody's real education is got out of school, in the big world of action, in the home, the market place, the factory or farm, the church, the lodge—in short wherever life and action go on. Far be it from me to belittle the school—I have spent my life thus far endeavoring to serve in schools. But make no mistake, it is folly for the men and women who make up the world of action to wish off the obligations of education upon schools and school teachers. In all the most vital elements of character the world of action re-educates, and it doesn't hesitate to de-educate, if I may coin a word—to break down, liquidate, what the school has cultivated, and plant its own ideals in place.

TEACH THEM THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA. My second answer to our original question is as simple and as emphatic as the first—teach the pupils the United States of America, their own country. Translating now from teaching to learning, the pupils should know about their own country, richly, abundantly, deeply, and above all truly. And in the process the learners should become genuine members of the Great Society and competent citizens of the Republic. Knowledge they must have, far beyond any present attainments, but knowledge alone is totally inadequate, they must have also a profound sentiment of affection and devotion. But the sentiment must be firmly based upon knowledge, or it degenerates into mere sentimentality, which is worse than useless. Even the Nazi regime did not achieve its diabolic educational ends merely by endless chanting of "Heil Hitler" and "Deutschland ueber Alles" but mainly by a tremendous process of indoctrination. But educating for freedom is a task of surpassing difficulty, not to be achieved by any mere chanting and parroting of phrases. If our patriotism is not as intelligent as it is warm, it may as easily lead to disaster as to national success and welfare. We have never resolutely set about this definite, indispensable task of education for democracy.

POETRY

AT THE RESTING PLACE OF THOMAS JEFFERSON
(Overlooking the University of Virginia)

He who loved music rests upon this hill
Where winter winds chant dirges, and tall firs
Bend low in mourning for the valiant one
Asleep beneath the drifts while snowbirds sing.

And springing from his heart red lilies bloom
Like silent elegies, when May unrolls
Her floral patterns in the sunny wood,
As thrushes weave their holy canticles.

Young voices from the valley echo here
Through all the seasons, in a symphony
Of benediction for the man who sowed
The seed of knowledge in the fields below.

No distant thunder, nor the hollow tune
Of bugles, drown the voice beyond the grave,
"These truths we hold to be self evident—
"Life, liberty, pursuit of happiness."

—Monica Tyler Brown.

CANTICLE

Many go proudly down the jagged path,
Past the far shadows and the night! the night!,
Past the far shadows and the night! the night!
To where the winds of pain have circled twice—
Yet never cry aloud: "Spare me! Spare me!"

For these, for such as these,
Are all our cantos sung,
As—"after darkness, light!"
And—"shining, the tall men come!"

—Kathryne E. Scoville.

DECEMBER AT PT. JOE

With audacious waves, with the advance guards of storms,
With a wet, watery foggy foam which splashes liquid salt
The rolling Pacific screams shoreward
And raps on the beach with the frozen knuckles of winter
And scatters the pondering curlews and sanderlings and gulls.

—Richard Irwin.

YOUTH'S WAR EFFORT

The War Committee of Sunset school, under the chairmanship of Betty Roberts, this past week collected and turned over to the A.W.V.S. between ten and eleven pounds of costume jewelry, in almost perfect condition.

Their donation, together with another fifteen pounds contributed by Carmel adults, will be delivered by the Salvage chairman of the A.W.V.S. to American soldiers on duty in the Solomon Islands, where such trinkets may be exchanged for many things produced by natives.

art, in turn, has organized a plan of action that is very concise and that will give the citizens of Carmel those fundamental needs, food shelter, clothing and information, should they ever be needed. Everyone should realize what a tremendous task this has been and what it means to each individual in the community.

Mr. Steve Patterson is chairman of the food committee, and will be assisted by the Canteen Corps, headed by Mrs. George Burton. Mr. Patterson is prepared to obtain and prepare food for the requirements of any number of people at any time.

Mr. B. Franklin Dixon has prepared a plan, as chairman of the shelter committee for housing people who might be made homeless through enemy action. This is an unending piece of work when we realize our constantly changing picture as to population.

The Red Cross has stored warm clothing of all sizes and descriptions, which Mrs. Mai McGrury, who is chairman of the clothing committee will distribute. Nor should it be forgotten that additional unlimited amounts of clothing would be forwarded here immediately, if needed, from one of the Red Cross warehouses in this area.

At the same time, the Red Cross turns over to the command of the chief of emergency service, Civilian Defense, Dr. Martin McAuley, two of its most active and well-trained units, Nurses' Aides and First Aid. Mrs. Edna Herlofson, chairman of the Nurses' Aides corps has worked out a plan for her organization of thirty-five well and thoroughly trained women to go into action immediately. These women will work both at the hospital and on the mobile field units.

Under Mrs. Pat Hudgins, chairman of First Aid, we have a very well equipped and trained group who fully realize their responsibility and are carrying on a regular program of training.

The Civilian Defense emergency medical service lists the majority of the local doctors, dentists and trained nurses as its personnel. They willingly volunteered to be trained for a plan of action, and are seriously working every week along the lines of their particular field. The Red Cross has stored for the use of this group, supplies, dressings, and blood plasma. And as in the case of clothing, additional supplies can be secured from one of the many Red Cross warehouses in case of need.

Knowing that most of us have relatives living elsewhere, the Red Cross through the Information and Registration committee, headed by Mrs. Gladys Kiplinger and Mrs. Herbert John Morse, have recruited a very good working committee to register all persons and to answer questions regarding the whereabouts of any individual of the community, whether missing, injured or not, as the case may be.

The Red Cross has designated the Sunset school and the Carmel High school as service centers where any individual is free to go for any of the above services in event of disaster.

When we realize the amount of time that has been spent on perfecting this plan, it should make us appreciate the fact that our local chapter of the Red Cross is aware of the great responsibility to the people of Carmel, and is prepared to cooperate with Civilian Defense in giving its very best effort.

For your own protection, make note of this plan for disaster activity and acquaint yourself with the personnel and service headquarters designated below:

SUNSET SCHOOL NEWS

Our Trip from Hawaii

Our trip began on April 5, 1942. First we had to pass the customs' inspection; then we got on board the Matson liner, Lurline. We stayed at the dock all night and pulled out early in the morning. About half way across, we got into some very rough waters. The Lurline is about as long as three blocks and is like three houses on top of one another. When the boat tipped the first deck almost reached the water. For protection we had a light cruiser along.—Jack Keliher, Grade 7.

The Rattlesnake

Mr. Blew took two boys, my brother, and me on a hike. He parked his station wagon at the High school. After lunch we started hiking up a hill. When we got to the top Mr. Blew almost stepped on a snake. He jumped back and told us it was a rattlesnake. The other boys and I started to back-track fast. He called us back to about three yards from the snake. We threw rocks to make it move.—Jerry Montague, Grade 5.

The First Cadets Graduate

On Saturday, May 1, the first battalion of cadets graduated from Del Monte. Capt. Steele made a speech, Battalion Commander Lt. Walters spoke and Lt. Com. Fitzhugh did, too, He is second in command at the station. It was a very pretty sight to see 250 cadets in their blue uniforms.—Mary Betty Hill, Grade 5.

Fishing

Last Saturday I went fishing with John Gibbs. We went up the Carmel river and caught some trout. Then we went hunting for frogs. I caught three but I put them back in the water and they swam away. We went swimming too, and did we have fun! John got an earache and a sore back and hasn't been in school this week.—David Berwick, Grade 5.

Our Chickens

About six weeks ago my daddy brought home thirty-six little chicks. My mother was so surprised that she talked about it all through dinner. The other day daddy and mother said that in about two months we can eat three of them. We'll have them for dinner on the Fourth of July. —Jerry Fay Yoakum, Grade 5.

Fishing

Friday after school my grandfather picked me up and we started for the mountains. Saturday we got up at six o'clock and went down to the lake. The fish can't see until seven o'clock. I don't like fishing in the lake because you can only catch twenty fish a week. We caught thirteen but lost a seven and a half dollar reel. My grandfather was trying to get it and fell and so he lost his pole and reel.—Gordon Martin, Grade 5.

AWVS Sponsors Street Shows in V Bond Drive

The A. W. V. S. of Monterey Peninsula, under the leadership of Mrs. C. H. Stearns, is contributing its bit in the current war bond drive by sponsoring street shows to be held in Monterey on Monday, May 10, from 2 to 5 p.m. and in the evening from 7 to 9, in Pacific Grove on Wednesday, May 12, from 3 to 6 p.m.

Mr. Harold Gyer is donating the lumber for the erection of booths in which uniformed A.W.-V.S. members will sell bonds and stamps at all three performances. Mr. Mark Keller is master of ceremonies for the Monterey show and Mr. Reginald Foster for that in Pacific Grove. The program, in charge of Verna Hurd, will include music furnished by the Pre-Flight and Army bands, a chorus of six small Chinese girls in native costume, singing "God Bless America" in American and Chinese, the appearance of Dan Garcia, the newsboy who has bought $3,000 worth of war bonds, skits by the Hildebrand sisters, Sonny Vance and Judge Hellam's little daughter as well as one prepared by Pacific Grove school children. Autographs of movie stars will be auctioned off by Mr. La Porte, and a tank and amphibian jeep will be on display.

Aircraft Drafting Course at Monterey

A tuition-free course in aircraft drafting will open at the Monterey Union High school on Monday, May 10, sponsored by the University of California War Training program. Its purpose will be to prepare women, as well as men, for positions as detailers, layout men and junior designers in California's major aircraft plants. Positions as trainees on salary will be available during the course to students meeting the personnel requirements of the larger aircraft companies.

Anyone who is a high school graduate is eligible to take the qualifying examination which will be held at 10:00 a.m. at the high school. Full-time training will be given over a period of twelve weeks by a technician right from one of the big bomber plants.

Detailed information may be secured from R. T. Krogh, in charge of the adult school office at the Monterey Union High school, or Van W. Dodson and Mrs. Ruby Nikirk in the Monterey office of the United States Employment Service.

Dr. Fenton to Speak On Youth Authority At Public Meeting

Of importance to all persons interested in the welfare of youth is the talk to be given by Doctor Norman Fenton under the sponsorship of the League of Women Voters Monday afternoon at 3:30 in the library at Sunset School.

Dr. Fenton is a member of the Stanford University faculty in the School of Education, and his subject on Monday will be "The California Youth Authority."

Its name changed by the present state legislature from Youth Correction Authority, this very new state agency received as its first ward, the fourteen year old Carmel Valley boy charged with the crime of murder.

Statistics from every source, F.B.I., coordinating councils of big cities, our own probation department, point to disturbing increases in youth delinquencies. California is pioneering a new treatment of young offenders. As now set up it deals with the individual after the delinquency has brought him into conflict with the law, but its whole design is to understand the individual and to so direct him that he will not drift on to habitual crime.

Personal study and treatment of the child who shows behavior difficulties is Doctor Fenton's particular field. He headed the Child Guidance Clinic formerly sponsored by the State Welfare department.

The loss of that clinic and its great usefulness points to the result of general public indifference and ignorance.

Doctor Fenton is serving as special consultant to the Youth Authority and his position in the inner councils gives him the intimate picture of this forward-looking experiment, its development thus far and its hopes and is eager to share with the community. The public is invited.

The Murdocks to S. F.

Tribute Paid to Mrs. Crowther at Auxiliary Meeting

Devotions at the Women's Auxiliary of the Church of the Wayfarer last Tuesday, conducted by Miss Helen Pierce, were in memory of Mrs. J. E. Crowther, the pastor's wife who recently passed away. In tribute Miss Pierce read a poem that was written to her mother at her death, expressing the close of a life full of interest in people and friendly contacts. Members of the auxiliary miss the warmth of Mrs. Crowther's personality at their meeting.

Mrs. Grace Howden was reelected president for next year. Other officers chosen are: Miss Betsy Lull, first vice-president; Mrs. William Hamilton, second vice-president; Mrs. Sawyer, secretary Miss Etta Paul, treasurer. Mrs. Orear discussed plans for a kindergarten or junior church for pre-school children during regular Sunday morning church services, which the Sunday school leaders hope to establish to give the tiny folk an interesting beginning in religious life.

Mrs. Rheinike, a visitor from Berkeley, gave two lovely solos: her accompanist was Miss Agnes Williston. Mrs. Howden announced that the circle meetings for April, canceled because of Mrs. Crowther's death, would be held on May 18, with fuller details given later. It was also reported that the Easter offerings in the church, a memorial to Mrs. Crowther, to be given to United China relief, with later contributions, had passed $600.

The chief part of the afternoon's program was the very illuminating outline and discussion by Mrs. Helen Cranston of "Problems of Lasting Peace" by Herbert Hoover and Hugh Gibson, accompanied by Mrs. Cranston's charts prepared from a very thorough study of the book. This review was reported in the Pine Cone Cymbal when it was given recently before the Woman's Club, of which the speaker is president. Members of the Auxiliary were very appreciative of this presentation, which they found most enlightening.

The Women's Christian Service study unit, which meets at 11:00 preceding the auxiliary box luncheon, completed the study of Latin American countries with Guatemala and a summary of racial, religious, social and economic conditions in the Caribbean islands, especially Cuba and Puerto Rico. In the latter case the responsibility of the United States to relieve the extreme economic difficulties due to the submarine menace and the shipping shortage, coupled with the one-crop sugar cane system of agriculture, was emphasized. Members voted the year's study very profitable.—L. L. T.

They have taken an apartment in Washington and will remain there until Petty Officer Lane completes his course at the Navy training school. Then they expect to come West for his new Navy assignment.

Bach Rehearsals

Bach Festival Chorus rehearsals are held regularly every Tuesday night, at seven-thirty o'clock, in Room 5 of the Sunset School. This room is in the main building, over the cafeteria. R. E. Manhire is in charge of the preliminary rehearsals. Sopranos, altos, tenors and basses are needed. All old members are urged to come and to bring new recruits with them. Gastone Usigli, who will direct the Festival, sends word that he will hold his first rehearsal shortly, and for the Chorus to work very hard.

GASOLINE MILEAGE

Tramping on the accelerator to make a quick get-away is one of the greatest causes of low gasoline mileage, according to the California State Automobile Association. More fuel than can be effectively used is pumped into the motor. The correct way is to accelerate gradually. The car will move just as fast and less fuel will be used.

Mayor Thanks Citizens for Aid In Bond Drive

I wish sincerely to thank the citizens of our Community for their splendid response to the Second War Loan Drive recently completed. Carmel did not quite reach its full quota, but the people dug deep in their pockets to buy $236,233.75 worth of Bonds.

The Treasury Department wants especially to thank all committee members and workers for their effort and to give the already overburdened personnel of the Carmel Building and Loan Association, The Bank of Carmel, The Monterey County Trust & Savings Bank and the Post Office a special thank you for contributing their efforts to the bond buying public.

Let us all continue to buy more Bonds and Stamps to bring our men back to peaceful, beautiful Carmel.

M. J. Peterson, Navy Base Head, Now Commander

Lt.-Commander M. J. Peterson, head of the Navy Section Base at Monterey, has received his new commission from Washington, D. C., elevating him to the rank of Commander.

A graduate of Annapolis, and veteran of World War I, Commander Peterson had reitred from the Navy when he and Mrs. Peterson came to Carmel ten years ago to make it their permanent home. For the next five years, he served as Skipper of the local Sea Scouts, leaving an indelible mark of high morale upon the youth of Carmel who came under his influence and training.

On February 23, 1942, he returned to active duty as liaison officer for the 12th Naval District, with headquarters in San Francisco, a post he filled for the ensuing eight months. Then, on October 26 of last year he was made commander of the Navy Section Base at Monterey.

Commander and Mrs. Peterson live in Hatton Fields in the home which was built for them five years ago.

Students to Give Spring Concert Tues., May 18

The annual spring concert of the Carmel high school orchestra, the Girls' Chorus and the Mixed Chorus will be given on May 18, Tuesday evening at 8:00 o'clock, and the public is cordially invited to attend this demonstration of Carmel's youthful prowess in the musical field.

The program, containing a variety of good music, will also present three talented young students of the Carmel high school as soloists who will be accompanied in their offerings by the orchestra.

The orchestra will be conducted by Jaffrey Harris, who is carrying on the instrumental work at the schools lately in the capable hands of Harold Bartlett, now departed to take his part in the war effort, and the choral work will be in the hands of Miss Angie Machado, who took over this department at the beginning of the year.

It will be interesting to the Carmel public to note that of the thirty instruments used in this concert, twenty are the property of the Carmel schools, and the players thereof have received most, if not all of their instruction on these instruments from the school's own musical staff, and during school hours. This is the third annual concert of the orchestra and as succeeding years bring increased musical facility and understanding to these student players and singers, Carmel is looking forward to building up an increased interest in a very sound branch of the arts. Many of the instrumentalists are quite youthful, but nevertheless already have a serious interest in music, which they expect to translate into action for their families and friends on May 16.

Rev. Ewan Tells of Human Incubators For Silk Worm Eggs

At the final meeting of the Carmel Womans' Club Monday the Reverend Douglas Ewan of Salinas spoke on "Silken Symbols of Cathay," his personality, topic and display of gorgeous Chinese fabrics making the occasion a memorable one.

The Rev. Ewan was born in China, and as his father, a doctor, had as patients some of the leaders of the present - day China, Mr. and Mrs. Ewan were invited to meet Mme. Chiang on her visit to San Francisco.

In a brief historical sketch of the present political situation in China, he stated that Sun Yat Sen's establishment of the republic of 1912 was greatly helped by the young Chinese who had been educated in America under the provisions of the returned indemnity following the Boxer rebellion. He spoke of the great difficulty in organizing such a vast area as China with its diverse provinces. In the case of three sections which held out against unification, what all the threats and pleadings of generals and statesmen could not do, was finally accomplished by Mme. Chiang who visited the recalcitrant area and won them over with her smile.

As he described the silk-making process, he was surrounded by gorgeous pieces of Chinese silk, beautifully embroidered. He showed strips of rice paper on which the silk worm eggs are placed to be stowed away about the human body which acts as an incubator. The worms are later placed on boards and fed with mulberry leaves, cut with a razor to secure the proper freshness. The industry is carried on by villages and families, the art handed down from generation to generation. As the weaving is best done in dark, damp rooms, a third of the workers contract tuberculosis. The seed stitch in the embroidery was very popular but it is now forbidden because a third of those who employed it developed cataract. The best embroidery is done by men who start their training young. They work from the back of the frame and it is considered bad luck to view the right side until all is finished.

In addition to describing the process by which they were made, Mr. Ewan told the stories connected with the garments and explained the symbolism of the designs. One of the costumes was modeled by Mrs. W. Ray Moore. —B. T. L.

Bardarson Fund Reaches $1,060

The trustees of the Otto Bardarson Memorial scholarship fund held their regular quarterly meeting in the library of Sunset school on Monday, May 3.

Though it has been the policy of the trustees to conduct no drive, to solicit no donations toward this fund established in memory of Carmel's late superintendent of schools, the amount continues to grow and now a total of $1,060 has been raised to date toward providing for the higher education of some boy or girl for whom it would otherwise be impossible.

AAUW Continues Help to Post

The American association of University Women voted at the April meeting to continue contributions to the support of Percival Observation Post at Pacific Grove. The members, not as assessments but as voluntary individual gifts, will furnish money for oil for heating the post and food for the "midnight snacks" of those who give their time for this important defense work.

Before the rationing of gas and food went into effect, members used, in turns, to prepare and take to the post the lunches needed, but in future the chairman for the post will receive the money and turn it over to the person directing the post for obtaining the supplies. Some members of the association are working in and contributing to support other observation posts on the Monterey Peninsula.

Churches . . .

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH

Next Sunday, Mother's Day, the second Sunday after Easter, at 8:00 a.m. the Service of the Holy Communion. At 9:30 a.m. the Church School. At 11:00 a.m. the Service of Morning Prayer with special Sermon message for the day by the Rector, Rev. C. J. Hulsewe. The boys' part of the Vested Choir will sing as the offertory anthem: "Faithful Shepherd Feed Me," by Friedrich Filitz (1847). Organ selections include Flagler's "Meditations" and Lemaigre's "Grand Chorus." Visitors to Carmel are especially invited to worship in this House of Prayer for All People.

CHURCH OF THE WAYFARER

During the absence of Dr. James E. Crowther the Church of the Wayfarer is endeavoring to use ministers of different denominations to enlarge its ministry as a community church. The supply for the next two Sundays will be the Reverend C. L. Trawin, D. D., a resident of Carmel.

Dr. Trawin has served his denomination officially as President of the Oregon Baptist State Convention and is a past moderator of the northern California State Convention. Coming from Philadelphia to the First church of Boise during the last war his ministry has been in the west since that time. After a long pastorate in the first church of Fresno he came to Salinas to lead in the building of their new church. While there the attractions of Carmel caused them to build their sunset home among our pines, where the family expects to spend happy years in service. Next Sunday is Mother's Day and the subject announced for the sermon is, "Mother of Twins" or "The Tragedy and the Triumph of Parental Partiality."

Margaret Sherman Lea's organ selections will include "Bells of St. Anne de Beaupre," "Song of the Basketweaver" and "Up the Sagnemay," all by Russell.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

In all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, a Lesson-Sermon will be read Sunday, May 9, on the subject "Adam and Fallen Man." The Golden Text will be: "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive," (I Corinthians 15:22).

Bible selections will include the following passages from Ephesians, 5: 8, 14: "For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light: . . . Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light."

Passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included which read as follows: " 'As in Adam (error) all die, even so in Christ (Truth) shall all be made alive.' . . . Whatever indicates the fall of man or the opposite of God or God's absence, is the Adam-dream, which is neither Mind nor man, for it it not begotten of the Father," (pp. 545, 282).

Nobody Can Tell Burckhardt It's "All for the Best"

No man in Monterey County has been more "put upon" by fate than Chief C. F. Burckhardt, until this week recruiter in charge of the recruiting station in Salinas National Guard Armory.

Since he was assigned to recruiting in 1940 he has looked forward to the time when he would be ordered to report for combat duty. A veteran of 23 years' service in the Navy, of two round the world tours of duty in the Asiatic fleet, two campaigns in China in 1936, and Yangtse-Po incident and the Sino Japanese trouble in 1939, he found recruiting a tame business but he conscientiously applied himself to the job waiting patiently for the assignment returning him to sea duty. Last week the assignment came through. Then, following a talk to a group of Sea Bee applicants, he stepped out of a station wagon, fell and received a compound fracture of the lower leg. Instead of reporting for sea duty, Chief Burckhardt is now fuming in a ward of the Navy hospital at Treasure Island.

Chief D. D. Noggle, a Peninsula boy who graduated from Monterey high school in 1925 and has lived in Salinas for the last ten years; is now recruiter in charge of the Navy Recruiting station at Salinas. His first job will be the staging of the Naval procurement party today from 8 a.m. until noon when Lt. Commander Sherman Leland and Lt. R. T. Sellman with three enlisted men will give medical examinations and I.Q. tests to a group of 15 Monterey County WAVE and SPAR applicants at the Armory in Salinas, and interview any new applicants who may apply at that time. The party is in preparation for the mass swearing in ceremonies in San Francisco May 13, 14, 15.

Fremont Pupils Meet to Study Background Music

Pupils of Mrs. Jesusa Guidi Fremont gathered in her studio at Ocean Avenue and Santa Rita last Saturday afternoon and continued their group study of the background of music, a project which Mrs. Fremont has fostered throughout a series of such meetings during the past months, to the keen interest not only of her pupils, but a number of adults who have made a point of attending.

The subject of Saturday's study was a comparison of the style of the romanticist composers with that of the classicists; with especial emphasis upon Beethoven's influence. Some of the students discussed the life and personality of the leading romantic composers: Shubert, Schumann, Von Weber, Mendelssohn, Chopin and Liszt; while others played illustrative selections from their works.

Col. Arms Promoted To Brig. General, Serving in China

Word reached Mrs. Thomas S. Arms of Carmel this week that her husband had been promoted from the rank of colonel to that of brigadier-general.

Brig.-General Arms, who was stationed at Fort Ord two and a half years ago, has for the past six months been serving in China, under Lt.-General Stilwell.

Mrs. Arms, who makes her home at "Moon Gate" on San Antonio street, has three sons as well as a husband in the service. Lt. Thomas S. Arms, Jr., graduated from West Point last year and is now enroute to a new, unidentified post. Sgt. Robert Arms is a flying instructor with the Canadian airforce and Private William Arms is in training for wings at the airfield in Merced.

Heron's Whopping Chard Suggests V Garden Show

Traffic was stopped for a brief interval Wednesday afternoon in front of the Seven Arts Court on Lincoln street while Herbert Heron, Carmel's ex-mayor, displayed a bunch of home grown Swiss chard, undoubtedly the largest and most perfect of its kind produced hereabouts. From stalk to tip, his Victory Garden product measured well over two feet.

No rare orchid blooming in a flower show could have aroused more enthusiastic and admiring "Oh's" and "Ah's" from passers-by, giving rise to the thought, why not a Victory Garden show in Carmel with war stamps for prizes?

City Council Explains Dog Laws in Carmel

STATEMENT FOR THE PRESS
From the Carmel City Council

The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea has entered into a contract with the Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which contract went into effect on April 1, 1943, and will terminate on December 31, 1943. Under the terms of the contract the Society will, during the quarantine period pick up all stray dogs, whether they are licensed or unlicensed, and after the quarantine is lifted the Society will pick up all unlicensed dogs.

Any unlicensed stray dog picked up by the Society, either during or after the quarantine, will be released only upon the payment of:

1. License fees due the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea plus penalties as provided by the City Ordinance;
2. Impounding fees in the sum of $2.50 per day (to SPCA);
3. Board bill at the rate of $.50 per day per dog.

No dog will be released during the quarantine period unless he has been in confinement at least three days.

During the quarantine owners of licensed dogs picked up by the Society are not required to pay the impounding fee of $2.50. The impounding fee is assured only against owners of unlicensed dogs picked up by the Society. Licensed dogs picked up after the quarantine for violation of any City Ordinance will be released only upon payment of the board bill and fines and penalties as provided for by the Ordinance Code of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Non-resident owners of dogs sojourning in Carmel for a period not exceeding 30 days are not required to apply for a dog license. However if their stay in Carmel exceeds 30 days, at the end of 30 days they are required to apply for a dog license. Any dog owned by a non-resident of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea is not required to apply for a license when such dog has been regularly licensed in accordance with the laws of the place of residence of such owner. However, such non-resident dog owner will be required to apply for a license upon the expiration of the license issued to him at the place of his residence if his stay in Carmel exceeds 30 days.

After the quarantine, all dogs, whether licensed or unlicensed in the business zone must be on a leash. (Sec. 822).

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, CALIFORNIA

Office of
The Mayor

On behalf of the Navy Recruiting Service, I have this day proclaimed the week May 9th, 1943 to May 5th, 1943 WAVE-SPAR WEEK, calling for three women volunteers from Carmel for duty in the WAVES or SPARS. Our Navy is still the first line of defense and now, more than ever in the Nation's history, it must be kept up to the full standard of its strength. To alert, healthy girls between 20 and 36 years of age, with a minimum of two years of high school education and preferably with office experience, the Navy offers unexcelled professional training at a leading college, good pay, and an opportunity to serve where all of their efforts will be war efforts.

I therefore respectfully ask that the citizens of Carmel cooperate with the Navy in securing this city's quota of WAVES and SPARS, and that many times three Carmel girls will give this outstanding wartime career their most serious consideration.

Mercurio Takes Job in Post Office

The Carmel postoffice was going through another of its periodic man-power shortages this week when Paul Mercurio resigned his job as assistant fire chief at the East Garrison of Fort Ord and volunteered to go to work as temporary mail clerk.

During the past week both Bill Weil and Cecil "Pop" Smith left the force, Weil going to his former home in Fresno and Smith to Los Angeles to visit his daughter. Early last month Ernest Casados also left the post office to take a draftsman's course in San Francisco.

Mercurio's return will not only help the postoffice in its present embarrassment but will benefit the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department as Mercurio will resume his activities there. Before he took the Fort Ord job he was an engine company captain and drill instructor.
